Celanese Presents Trends in Medical Plastics at 2015 Medical Device & Manufacturing Conference

MT expert discusses how selecting the right polymer can meet OEM requirements and improve patient comfort

DALLAS (September 30, 2015) – Celanese Corporation (NYSE: CE), a global technology and specialty materials company, will present the latest trends in medical plastics at the 2015 Medical Device & Manufacturing (MD&M) Conference in Philadelphia, Pa.

As a global materials supplier to the medical industry, Celanese will discuss how it is developing new product opportunities to provide innovative polymer solutions that meet the changing needs of medical device manufacturers. Don DeMello, field development engineer at Celanese, will discuss the company’s latest medical technology (MT) innovation, Hostaform® MT® SlideX™ POM, and how this material is improving patient comfort and ease of use for complex medical devices.

“We hear the needs of medical device OEMs and are focusing our efforts on specific polymer solutions that provide increased benefits to the end user,” said Andrew Brown, global medical industry director for Celanese. “Hostaform MT SlideX POM is one example of an innovative material advancement that delivers not only value for the OEM but also for the patient.”
